Corentin, the Postman with the Big Heart

Nadine Brun-Cosme & Sébastien Pelon

A fine tribute to all the world's postmen...

Every morning, Corentin the postman sets off on his rounds. Hop! A small bump, he's in front of Odette's house. Hop, hop! Two small bumps further on, it's Léon's house. Hop, hop, hop! Three bumps further on, it's Martin's stable. Hop, hop, hop, hop! The last house is Gaston's. A perfumed letter, a little surprise package... Corentin has work to do. One day, two days, three days, no package for Gaston, no letter for Odette. But what will Corentin do?

A Cat at School

It's Timmy's first day of school and he's a bit worried: it feels as if his stomach is in knots and his heart is pounding. So he decides to take his friend Patoche with him. What could go wrong? In the playground, Timmy makes a friend and he forgets about Patoche, who is hidden in his school bag. Once he arrives at class, Patoche can't stay still... Chaos assured!

Pub. year: 2024

Rights sold: French, Korean.

Following the sporting achievements of Patoche (Kings of Sliding), Timmy has a genius idea: to register his cat for the Athletic Games. Training begins, but it's clear that the feline has no talent for sport. With Timmy's support and perseverance, Patoche makes progress. D-day arrives. Some competitors have stage fright. And that's when Patoche shows all his qualities: he encourages others and takes care of them, even if it means forgetting his athletic performance.

Mysteries on the Nile

Alex Moury's class won a cruise on the Nile. Boarding the Sobek, the children sail down the Nile from Luxor to Aswan, visiting temples and tombs. But the voyage is not without its perils as pirates follow the boat's progress and even attempt an attack. To top it all off, two tourists who have joined the passengers are attacked in a temple, right in front of the students. What are the bandits after? Could there be a secret on the Sobek?

Mysteries in Maya country

As part of a study of pre-Columbian people, Alex Moury's class travels to Mayan country in Mexico. But during a trip by pirogue, some students get lost in the jungle. Fleeing from a gang of traffickers, the children take refuge with the Lacandons. But jaguar is also on the prowl. To escape their pursuers, both beasts and traffickers, they enter a deep cavern that leads to a perfectly preserved (and inhabited!) Mayan city. To preserve their secret, will the Mayans let the children go?

Mysteries in Rome

Alex Moury's class takes part in an archaeological course in Rome, where they meet other Italian pupils under the guidance of a slightly mad teacher. They discover an Etruscan tomb which, according to the indications engraved on the sarcophagus, is that of an evil god. But isn't it dangerous to awaken a god capable of hurling thunderbolts at the city? And what happened to the professor whose body is found in the stone sarcophagus?

Mysteries in the Transsiberian

Alex Moury's class sets off to discover Russia, embarking on a long journey to Irkutsk aboard the legendary Trans-Siberian Railway. But as they stop off to visit monuments and learn about the history of the country and the regions they pass through, the children notice that a spy is following in their footsteps. More specifically, those of Alex Moury. But why? Is the master hiding a secret? Is he in danger? His class is determined to find out...

Mysteries in Tokyo

Alex Moury's class has won a grant to travel to Japan and discover its history, culture and traditions. On his first night at the hotel, Jasper is unpleasantly surprised to find a dragon in samurai armor haunting the premises. Is there a connection between this strange apparition, a yakuza attack, a mysterious Mr. Izomu who keeps following the students and a peculiar thief who is only interested in empty luggage?

The 12th mystery of a series by best-selling author Alain Surget!

Alex Moury's class is headed for the French Capital. Visits to museums, walks in the city, strolls along the banks of the Seine... But as soon as they arrive in the «City of Light», strange things happen: a finger, an ear and two eyes get stolen from works of art in various places.

By a curious coincidence, the class systematically finds itself at the scene of the crimes. This attracts the attention of the police... Could there be a connection between the presence of the class and these strange thefts?

Looking for Pharaoh

Eager for adventure, Yann, Loup and Nanie love meeting up at Gaspard's house. Today, this kind-hearted but slightly mad old inventor has some great news: his time machine works, and the three friends will be able to travel back in time! First trip? A day in the Egypt of the pharaohs. But it seems that Anubis, god of the dead, has decided otherwise... If our three heroes wish to return to their own time, they must first save Khephren, heir to the Egyptian throne! A perilous mission. Accompanied by Princess Meritites, the three friends will criss-cross the country and cross paths with a "Shadow Swallow", killer and henchman of Djedefre. Brother of Khaphre and evil Pharaoh, he'll do anything to keep his place...

Attack on Troy

Sent by old inventor Gaspard to the heart of the Trojan War, Nanie, Yann and Loup have a mission: to find King Priam's treasure. But when they arrive, they discover a plot hatched by two Trojan merchants and a high priest. Wishing to hasten the end of the war to resume their activities, they kidnap Astyanax, son of Hector, during a banquet. The child is freed on condition that the Trojans let Helen return to Greece. Without delay, our three heroes set off in search of the young boy. They take turns to infiltrate into the Greek, and Trojan camps, posing as envoys of the god Kronos. If they don't find Astyanax, the outcome of the entire war is threatened... But the Time Explorers are ready to brave any danger to restore the course of history!

Double Plot in Rome

For this third travel in time, Gaspard invites Nanie, Loup and Yann to immerse themselves in a major event in the history of Rome: Caesar's Triumph. The teenagers are thrilled at the prospect of attending the festivities alongside the Emperor and Cleopatra. The only problem is that a plot, led by an as yet unknown enemy, is being hatched against the Queen of Egypt. Once there, the three friends find themselves drawn into the city's underworld, where they discover the lively daily life of Roman people. In the middle of the night, Nanie is kidnapped and sold the next day on the slave market! Our heroes are disoriented in a city where events are out of their control, but an unexpected encounter could change everything.

Best-selling author Alain Surget shows the dangers of changing the course of history while time traveling!

Nanie, Yann and Loup share a passion for History and adventure. When Gaspard, their old scientist friend, invents a fantastic time machine, they become the 'Time Explorers'. Mission: anything we can imagine BUT change the course of History!
